

GOV. TERRAL'S BROTHER GOT FEE IN PARDON CASE

Says He Arranged Meeting Between Father of Prisoner and Acting Governor of Arkansas.

DENIES HE CAN SWAY EXECUTIVE

Latter Says Brother Isn't Running Office and Points Out He Had Pardon Revoked.

By the Associated Press. LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 31.—Complete denial of having had anything to do with the activity of his brother, Floyd Terral, in securing a pardon for Lee Mode, convicted of burglary, and a declaration that the affidavit given to the press by J. A. Mode, Conway merchant and banker, that he paid the Governor's brother $1000 to secure a pardon for his son, Lee, was inspired by "political motives" are made by Gov. Tom J. Terral in a statement. Lee Mode was one of the nine convicts pardoned by S. B. McCall, President of the Senate, while acting Governor in the absence of Gov. Terral last fall. The nine pardons were held invalid by the State Supreme Court to which Terral carried the fight to void the orders issued by McCall. The Governor's statement followed a statement by Floyd Terral last night, after Mode's affidavit had been given newspapers. Mode's statement and affidavit charged that Gov. Terral told him that his son would be given a suspension of sentence and advised him to return to the capital on a certain date. He said that on his return to Little Rock he found his son, Lee, with $1000 in his pocket, but through payment of $1000 to the Governor's brother, he got the pardon for his son from the acting Governor.

Governor's Denial.

Gov. Terral termed the portion of Mode's statement relating to a promise of clemency from him as a "lie."

"Mode knew that he had no chance on earth of securing clemency from me," Gov. Terral said. "Hence his appeal to acting Gov. McCall."

Referring to Mode's charge that he paid the Governor's brother $1000 and was now trying to get it back, since the pardon was held invalid, the Governor said: "He complained that he paid my brother $1000 for securing the pardon, and now that I had fought them and the Court held the pardon void, he felt that I should give his son clemency. I made it plain that my brother was not running the Governor's office. If Floyd Terral did not have any source of revenue except fees for pardons, his family would starve to death. My opposition to those who try to live upon clemency by getting fees out of them for clemency is well known."

Floyd Terral got $1000. Floyd Terral, in a statement, admitted that he had received $1000 for assisting Mode in getting his son a pardon from acting Gov. McCall, but that it was his fee as an attorney. He said that he arranged a meeting between McCall and Mode. His brother knew nothing about it, he declared, adding, "I didn't think I was doing wrong, and my brother should not be blamed."

Refuses $500 Fee. Floyd Terral said that he met an attorney from Conway, representing the Mode family, in a Little Rock hotel to discuss the pardon for Lee Mode. Later, the two met Acting Gov. McCall.

"Nothing was said about a fee that night," the statement said. "I would not go and get the pardon, but I believed I could get the Acting Governor to give the pardon to him, and that I would do this for a fee of $1000. This was agreed upon. A short time later, I located the Acting Governor and he came to my office and in conference with the lawyer from Conway, McCall promised to grant the pardon if the lawyer from Conway would go to the capital."

He denied having any influence with his brother or having ever interfered with him for any convict.

Gov. Terral is making the race to succeed himself for a second term. He is known as the "no pardon, no parole Governor," not having issued a pardon or parole since taking office.

The nine pardons issued by McCall during the absence of the Governor last fall were held invalid in Chancery Court and the ruling sustained in the Supreme Court. Two of the pardoned men are now fighting extradition in Texas and the other seven including Lee Mode, have never been apprehended to be returned to complete their sentences.

Fraud in Office Probable Charge Against Sidener

At any rate, the present grand jury will make a full and complete report on the Rutherford case and leave to the next panel of grand jurors a sweeping investigation of Sidener's office.

OFFICER AND MAN WHOSE JOB HE GOT KILLED IN FIGHT

Shooting at Colp, Ill., Follows Attempt of Marshal Charles Lawson to Arrest John Freeman.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. MARION, Ill., May 31.—John Freeman, former City Marshal of Colp, a small mining settlement about two miles west of Herrin, died yesterday in Holden Hospital, Carbondale, of injuries suffered in a fight Saturday night with his successor, Charles Lawson, who was killed in the fight.

Bitter feeling between Freeman and Lawson was kindled during a municipal election about three weeks ago. Jess Stone was elected Mayor of Colp, and one of his first acts was to remove Freeman and appoint Lawson to his place.

The shooting is said to have occurred in a gambling house, where Lawson and Stone went to serve a warrant on Freeman on a peace-disturbance charge. Who fired the first shot will be a point for the coroner's jury to determine, as accounts of witnesses vary on this point.

The law pertaining to fraud in office, under which this grand jury is expected to indict Sidener and possibly others, is contained in three statutes of the 1919 revision—namely, Nos. 3194, 3195 and 3198. The first defines fraud in office as misdemeanor; the second provides that a conviction of an officer shall forfeit his post, lose his right to vote and to hold office in Missouri; and the third fixes the punishment as a fine not exceeding $500, or a year in jail, or both.

Citizens of Randolph County, Ark., Indorse Terral's Stand. Special to the Post-Dispatch. LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 31.—Gov. Terral of Arkansas has received a telegram from a group of citizens of Randolph County, Ark., indorsing his stand in the Rutherford case. Gov. Terral has declared he will make no move toward surrendering Allen Rutherford to St. Louis until Gov. Baker of Missouri honors a requisition of Paul Dollinger of Fredericktown, Mo., to Pocahontas, Ark., where he is wanted on a bad-check charge.

June when postoffice inspectors will report the result of their investigation to determine whether the mails were used in the fraud, within the meaning of the statute. The Motlow case referred to by the Governor was the trial in 1924 of Lem Motlow, wealthy Tennessee distiller, and former owner of the Jack Daniel warehouse in St. Louis, on a charge of first degree murder for killing Clarence T. Pullis, St. Louis, publisher of the Pullis & Nashville train and crossing the Mississippi River after leaving St. Louis. Motlow had been drinking and had an altercation with a Negro porter, at whom he fired, the bullet striking Pullis instead. An appeal to race prejudice was made by Motlow's attorney, and a jury acquitted Motlow. One of the jurors remarked afterwards that Sidener had handled the State's case poorly and had been "mixed up" in his argument.

Candidate for Congress FOR RIVER IMPROVEMENT. William Gray Also Favors Referendum on Prohibition and Is Opposed to the World Court. William Gray of 5269 Vernon avenue, who files Saturday as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Eleventh District, has announced as one of the principal parts of his platform a pledge to actively support legislation for the development of the Mississippi River.

He also includes declaration in favor of assistance to disabled veterans, religious liberty, a commission to study methods to improve the social and economic condition of the negro, opposition to unreasonable searches and seizures, support of a referendum on prohibition and opposition to the World Court.

Report on Criminal Law Changes. Chancellor Hadley of Washington University and Jesse W. Barnett will present their report on "Specific Changes in the Criminal Law," prepared for the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice, at a joint luncheon meeting of the association, the Chamber of Commerce and the St. Louis Bar Association, at the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday. Hadley is former Governor of Missouri and Barnett is former Attorney-General of the State.

Man's Death to Be Investigated. A coroner's inquest will be held into the death of Samuel Dickinson, 73 years old, a photographer, of 5855 Easton avenue. Last September Dickinson was struck by an automobile at Hamilton and Easton avenues, suffering a fractured skull and leg. He was discharged from City Hospital as cured on Dec. 5. Last Wednesday he complained of pain in the stomach and died Saturday night.

Laborer Ends Life With Poison. Richard Spiller, 63 years old, died today from the effects of poison, which he drank at his home, 2206 South Fourth street, a short time previously.

Business Ceases FOR OBSERVANCE OF MEMORIAL DAY. Banks, Exchanges, Courts, Public Offices and Stores Closed—Many Outings in Country.

Observance of Memorial Day in St. Louis today was marked by a general cessation of business, a display of flags and bunting throughout the city, and ceremonies in honor of those who died in the nation's wars.

Banks, exchanges, courts, municipal and Federal offices, department stores, and most business houses, were closed, and the Post-office was on a Sunday schedule during the morning. The forecast was for a bright day with light winds from the city, having grasped the opportunity for a two-day holiday in the country.

Plans for the day were threatened by uncertain weather. Following a brilliant sunrise, the sky was soon overcast and rain fell during the morning. The forecast was for thunderstorms during the afternoon and evening. Yesterday began with a downpour, but changed early to a clear sky.

Veterans' organizations are conducting memorial exercises, the most impressive being the afternoon ceremonial in the National Cemetery at Jefferson Barracks. Yesterday was devoted mainly to the decoration of graves in other cemeteries. The American Legion, by a division of effort among its 22 posts, saw to it that the grave of no World War veteran was forgotten.

Services for Sailor Dead. A memorial service for the sailor dead of all American wars was conducted on the Municipal Bridge, starting at 9:45 a. m., by St. Louis Circle, Ladies of the G. A. R. About 150 persons attended, marching to the center span from the west approach. Addresses were delivered by Circuit Judge Callahan, Probate Judge Holcomb, a Spanish War veteran, Prosecuting Attorney Schweitzer, representing the American Legion; Allen J. Showers, a G. A. R. member, and Miss Druella Gregory, president of the Virgile. Children from Kingdom House sang patriotic songs.

Rifemen from the Naval Reserve Corps fired three volleys to the air, flowers were strewn on the surface of the river and two subchasers of the Naval Reserve fired a salute of 21 guns. Meanwhile, the TC-7, Scott Field airship, circled overhead. "Taps" closed the exercises.

Several hundred Spanish War Veterans formed in Twelfth Street, south of Pine street at noon and marched north in a column of four to five blocks, headed by their drum and bugle corps in khaki. Many men in the column were in uniform, some in blue and a few in the "O. D." of the National Guard, but most of them wore civilian clothes, frequently with campaign hats. A little boy in white trotted along with his father, carrying an American flag. The column turned east down Washington avenue to Fourth street and boarded special street cars for Jefferson Barracks, to join in the exercises there.

G. A. R., Spanish War and American Legion posts and auxiliaries gathered on the parade grounds at the Barracks at 2:30 p. m. Led by the dwindling ranks of the six remaining G. A. R. posts, the veterans moved to the natural amphitheater of the cemetery where the services were held.

For the first time, the Civil War veterans will not be expected to walk. Because of their advancing age, the average is 83. Veterans authorities have set aside the rule which bars the cemetery roads to vehicles. The drives will be open.

St. Louis Botanist to Seek Lost Yellow Lily in Africa

Dr. D. H. Linder of Shaw's Garden to Cross Dark Continent With Scientific Expedition Led by Dr. R. P. Strong of Harvard.

A lost yellow lily of the tropics will be sought in African jungles by Dr. David H. Linder, mycologist or fungus expert at Shaw's Garden, who has obtained a year's leave of absence as a member of a scientific expedition under the direction of Dr. Richard P. Strong of Harvard University.

Eight scientists will be members of the expedition, which is sponsored by the Harvard Institute of Tropical Biology and Medicine. Under the leadership of Dr. Strong, who already has contributed notably to research into tropical diseases, the effect of special drugs will be tested on sleeping sickness and other ills of the tropics, a survey will be made of health in Liberia, and data will be gathered on tropical diseases of animals and plants.

Hunters, photographers, bearers, porters and so on will make the exploring party about 300 strong. They will land at Monrovia, capital of scientifically unexplored Liberia, make their way across Liberia and the Belgian Congo and emerge in British East Africa, probably at Mombasa.

Dr. Linder, who in addition to his work at the garden is a teacher of botany in Washington University, is the mycologist for the expedition and will collect fungi and other plants for Shaw's Garden. But his special mission will be the search for the lost water lily.

"The only known specimen of this plant is a dried one in the Berlin herbarium, obtained by Stuhlmann in 1875," explained Dr. George T. Moore, director of the Garden. "For the last 10 years the Garden has been attempting to find this lily, since there is no yellow tropical water lily in cultivation. It is very desirable to obtain this variety for hybridization purposes, in continuation of the work of this character whereby the garden has created and introduced into cultivation the finest known varieties of white, pink and blue tropical lilies."

"The late Sir William Northrup McMillan, who left St. Louis to become a hunter and an explorer, with an estate in British East Africa, during his lifetime made several unsuccessful attempts to find the lost lily. Edward Mallinckrodt Jr. and E. H. Steudman sought in vain for it on their recent hunting expedition to Africa."

Dr. Linder, who in addition to his work at the garden is a teacher of botany in Washington University, is the mycologist for the expedition and will collect fungi and other plants for Shaw's Garden. But his special mission will be the search for the lost water lily.

LEADER IN PORTUGUESE REVOLT RULES COUNTRY

Commander Cabecadas to Direct Government Till New Ministry Is Formed.

LISBON, Portugal, May 31.—(Associated Press.)—Commander Cabecadas, one of the most popular men in the Portuguese Navy, who in 1916 contributed greatly to the establishment of the republic by bombarding the royal palace, is to take over the responsibilities of government until a new ministry is formed.

President Machado has requested Cabecadas to act in this capacity until the situation caused by the overthrow, Saturday, of the ministry headed by Antonio Maria Da Silva, is straightened out. The downfall of Da Silva was due to a revolutionary movement in which Commander Cabecadas was one of the leaders.

The coup, which resulted in the ousting of Da Silva, started last week and was carried out without the firing of a shot. The revolutionary committee in a communication announced that the movement was purely republican and that it was begun on the basis of forming a democratic government and saving the country from politicians who were ruining it.

President Machado Concession.

In addition to Commander Cabecadas, Gen. Gomes Da Costa was one of the prime movers in the revolt, which had the support of the garrisons of Lisbon, Oporto and Braga and the navy school on the left bank of the Tagus and the infantry school outside Lisbon.

President Machado, after the beginning of the revolt, which started at Braga, conferred with the revolutionary leaders and agreed to the formation of a new extra-parliamentary government, the duties of which will be dissolution of Parliament and the expunging of laws which are considered to be against national interests. Commander Cabecadas agreed to take over the government temporarily and form a ministry of military men and civilians who do not belong to any political party.

Cabecadas last year started a similar revolt, but the army failed to act with him. In 1910, when the hopes of the republicans were almost lost, Cabecadas bombarded the royal palace and contributed largely to the victory of the diss-

The Navy Blue Coat Is Smart

—And Here Are Three Distinct Types to Serve the Needs of the Woman Who Travels or Spends Her Summer at Home

Dress Coats of Navy Twill

$48

Light in weight, and yet of substantial quality, these have the characteristics most desired for this season, with the additional advantage of being wearable late into the Fall. Under-arm trimmings of tucks are slenderizing—collars of squirrel give a flattering softness.

The Versatile Coat

$25.00

When the occasion demands a tailored Coat, or a Dress Coat, this model is in perfect taste because of its simplicity. Tailored to a nicety of navy twill of substantial quality.

The Tailored Coat

Traveling in Summer presents a problem in Coat-smartness that is happily answered with this type—man-tailored, and yet of a light weight because of the twill fabric that is used.

Sale of 1200 Boys' Imported Silk Pongee Sport Blouses

Well Tailored and Specially Priced to Offer Very Unusual Savings

$1.29

We purchased the silk pongee from an importer at a substantial concession in price. In turn a leading maker co-operated with us by making these Blouses in his usual high-grade manner at a very low figure. These factors enable us to offer these exceptional savings.

Each Blouse is carefully tailored of a 12-momme imported silk pongee that is very cool and washes well. They are in sport neck style with short sleeves and patch flap pocket. Sizes are from 6 to 14 years.

(Thrifty Avenue—Main Floor, and Boys' Own Store—Fourth Floor.)

Desirable Room-Size Rugs

Are Featured at Noteworthy Savings

Axminster 9x12 Rugs

Are Grouped at $28.75

Thick, soft Rugs in a variety of attractive designs in Chinese and the popular all-over patterns. A complete color range is offered—bright or subdued shades—in these serviceable Rugs.

Wilton Rugs $105.00

Replicas of beautiful Persian and Chinese Rugs with their typically Oriental designs and colorings; size 9x12.

9x12 Wool Wiltons

With Fringe $69.75

Good grades of wool Wilton Rugs will be found in this group, which offers choice of many excellent designs and attractive colorings, suitable for any room; size 9x12.

Wilton Carpet $3.75 Sq. Yd.

Any size Rug you desire, can be fashioned from this 9 or 12-ft. wide Carpeting in the plain heather and taupe shades. (Sixth Floor.)

Coolmor Porch Shades

Says Headaches, Dizzy Spells and Sluggishness, All Danger Signals of High Blood Pressure

If you did not know that these and other conditions such as sleeplessness, nervousness, shortness of breath, flushed face, pain in the head and chronic tired feeling are danger signals of high blood pressure it is time you needed their warning.

Now that it is known high blood pressure brings on Bright's Disease, Apoplexy and often sudden death, it is not surprising that these symptoms should be taken so seriously.

First-class druggists everywhere are now selling a purely vegetable medicine and a famous Buffalo physician's prescription called Normo, which safely reduces high blood pressure.

Normo eliminates from the system the poisonous waste matter which may have caused it and causes the blood vessels to relax and bring greater pressure to bear on the heart. The effect of Normo is immediate. After one bottle will be required to bring the blood to normal. You can get it from Dr. W. H. Williams, Drug Store, 1001 N. Grand St., or any other drug store.

JOE and ASBESTOS—Maybe They'll "Discover" a Winner

Joe and Asbestos cartoon by Ken Kling. Joe is a man in a suit, Asbestos is a man in a hat. They are looking at a road map. Joe says: "AFTER HEARING ALL THE NICE THINGS SAID ABOUT A GUY NAMED 'AMUNDSEN' JUST CAUSE HE HOPPED OVER THE NORTH POLE IN SOME TRICK THING CALLED 'THE NORGE'— JOE AND ASBESTOS HAVE DECIDED TO GO THAT BIRD ONE BETTER BY SKIMMING OVER THE EAST POLE IN THEIR OWN LITTLE AIR-FLUNGER— 'THE FORGE'— OF COURSE, THEY DON'T KNOW WHETHER THERE REALLY IS AN EAST POLE— BUT AS PAUL REVERE, THAT FAMOUS PAUL PLAYER ONCE CHIRPED 'FAINT HEART NEVER CRASHED THE GATE AT A BASEBALL GAME— SO WATCH OUR HEROES'". Asbestos says: "WE PRINT A PHOTO OF 'COUSIN SCOTTY' FOR THE BENEFIT OF THOSE WHO ARE INTERESTED IN THE FINANCIAL END OF THE TRIP! HE HAS VOLUNTEERED TO PAY THE GASOLINE". A little device carried in the emergency kit of the "FORGE" in case it lands in a desert by mistake. Joe and Asbestos are both observing the holiday and making no bets today. Watch this space for their daily log of course, if they happen to drop into the ocean— there will be no log that day— unless they fall on one.

Four Boxing Shows Scheduled for Week in New York District.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Four boxing shows of attractive caliber in open air metropolitan arenas add impetus to the outdoor fistic season this week.

One title tilt is on the list, with Tod Morgan of Seattle making his Eastern debut by defending his 130-pound championship in a 15-round match with Steve (Kid) Sullivan of Brooklyn, former holder of the junior lightweight honors, at Ebbetts Field on Thursday night.

Jack Delaney, hard-hitting light heavyweight star, boxes Tommy Burns of Detroit in a 10-rounder on the same card.

Probably the most exciting punch fest of the week will be at the Coney Island Stadium on Friday in three bouts that have a distinct inter-sectional flavor. Sid Terris, recognized here as the leading lightweight title contender, meets Billy Petrolle of Fargo, N. D., and Eddie Anderson of Wyoming battles Joe Glick, Brooklyn junior lightweight, in two 12-round bouts, while a six-round finds the young East Side lightweight sensation, Ruby Goldstein, pitted against Mike Dundee of Rock Island, Ill.

Ruby Has Won 23 in a Row.

Goldstein, in a brief but meteoric career so far, has won 23 consecutive bouts, 13 of them by knockouts.

Dave Shadle returns to competition in the opening show of the week Tuesday night, at the Queensboro A. C., stepping out of his welterweight class to mix with Max Rosenbloom, New York middleweight, in a 10-round go.

Tex Rickard's big Jersey City arena, Boyle's Thirty Acres, will be thrown open for the season Friday night with a program headed by a 10-round contest between Kid Kaplan, world's featherweight champion, and Billy White of Jersey City. Kaplan's title will not be at stake.

The left field crowd, Munson pulling up at third. Blades grabbed Shannon's fly. NO RUNS.

SEVENTH INNING.

CARDINALS.—Bottomley doubled down the right field line. Mueller bounced to Shannon and Bottomley was nailed at third. Shannon to Freigau. L. Bell singled to right. O'Farrell poled his fourth straight hit, a single to left, which scored Mueller. Thevenow beat out a hit to Shannon, filling the bases. H. Bell was called out on strikes. Blades popped to Adams back of second. ONE RUN.

CHICAGO.—Thevenow tossed out Hartnett. Tolson batted for Bush and singled to right. Adams singled through Thevenow. Heathcote popped to L. Bell. Munson forced Adams. Thevenow to Hornby. NO RUNS.

EIGHTH INNING.

CARDINALS.—Milstead replaced Bush for Chicago. Douthit bunted and was thrown out by Freigau. Hornby walked on four pitched balls. Wilson ran in for Bottomley's short fly. Mueller flied to Wilson. NO RUNS.

Pennock, With Good Support, Leads Pitchers

Yankees' Heavy Hitting Aids Crafty Southpaw.

By John B. Foster.

(Copyright, 1926.)

NEW YORK, May 31.—Left-handed pitching laurels of the American League may be disputed by Pennock of the Yankees. Rutherford of Washington, Grove of the Athletics. Dark horses may be Jones of Detroit and Shaute of Cleveland.

A lot of good right-hand pitching is being done, but if the southpaw artists run true to form, they have a fine chance of leading the entire pitching crew.

Pennock has a mighty batting team to aid him, and a team that is not slow either on its feet or in its head. What Pennock needs most of all is to nurse what physical resources he has. He is not the rough-and-tumble pitcher that some of his contemporaries are. Courage rather than strength has carried him to the top.

Could Have Won a Flag.

Had Connie Mack kept Pennock last season he might have won the pennant. Pennock would have filled in where Grove had not developed far enough to be a success. During the past winter, however, Grove absorbed a few of the things that are essential to major league baseball and now he looks a lot better. Not the least of the reasons for this was the daily advice given him by Kid Gleason, a wise old chap who could pitch a good game of ball when some of the present-day pitchers hadn't reached the snowball throwing stage. Grove has endurance, and now that he is learning how to conserve it, he should do well.

Ruether has skill and experience, but a mentality that has been in his way from the time he acquired the idea that he should be a giant. He was never the same ball player after that. It is very likely that Rixey will be the left-hand star of the National League. He hung out this spring for a raise and got it. Now he is trying to prove that he was worth it. He hung out on a club that seemed to have a chance—if he signed—to win the National League pennant. He was criticized for his attitude, but he persisted in the idea that a raise in the hand was worth two world series bonuses in the making.

If Rixey can win 20 games for the Cincinnati Reds, they will surely give him a money raise at the end of the season, and they have a chance to play for the world series cash, provided they can keep on defeating Pittsburgh and St. Louis.

Another left-hander in the National League who promises some day to shine is Jones of Chicago. He has been rugged like a lot of other left-handers who hang on by the edges of greatness, but he has skill. What he must acquire is control and experience. Both of those traits come slow to left-handers. Often they will require four years or more to come to the point where they are among the leaders.

St. Louis has two left-handers in the National League who should be winners, but they can't get the value of pitching fixed in their head. They are Hallahan and Reinhardt. Maybe both will strike the proper note at the same time. If they do the Cards will be fighting for the pennant in September more furiously than they have fought for it in May.

U. S. Tennis Team Makes Clean Sweep of Matches in Paris

Americans Win Two Men's Singles Matches, One Women's Singles and One Women's Doubles — Richards' Victory Over LaCoste Is Feature of Day's Play.

By Herbert L. Bourke.

England's Foremost Tennis Authority.

PARIS, May 31.—America made a clean sweep yesterday in the international lawn tennis competition at the Racing Club de France here. The net results of the day's play revealed the United States stars victors in two men's singles matches, one women's singles and one women's doubles.

The outstanding contest was that between the youthful American ace, Vincent Richards and the French champion, Rene Lacoste, which Richards won 7-4, 4-6, 8-6.

His victory was the last event of the Franco-American mixed tennis tournament and made the final score eight for the United States and three for France.

In the other matches, Howard Kinsey defeated Paul Feret, yesterday conqueror of Richards; Miss Helen Wills won from Miss Mathieu and the Misses Elizabeth Ryan and Mary K. Brown captured a doubles match from Mme. Charaulet and Miss Cousin.

Miss Wills Wins Easily.

Miss Helen Wills, American woman lawn tennis champion, played a somewhat inspired game in defeating Miss Mathieu, 6-3, 6-4. The American looked pale and seemed tired, but there was little need for bustle against the young French player.

Miss Mathieu in spite of her youth, showed a good defense against Miss Wills, but was too flustered by a 2-0 lead in the second set. Miss Wills apparently was careless at this stage, for she twice double-faulted in the seventh game, and if she deliberately loosened up at any stage I think such a policy was a mistake, for in such cases a player finds difficulty in getting back to best form quickly. It would be inexpedient for Miss Wills, after the long winter season, to over-practice prior to the French championships, in which there is entered much big talent besides Miss Suzanne Lenglen.

Kinsey Defeats Feret.

As Rene Lacoste did on the first day, Paul Feret found difficulty in developing an attack against what has been termed Howard Kinsey's "donkey drop mixtures." Kinsey's style had his opponent guessing and effectively slowed him down. Kinsey won, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4.

In high wind Kinsey had the ball play regular pranks, but against the wind the ball was sometimes held up, giving Feret ample time to scope it at the net or to smash from midcourt. Feret won his set mostly in such manner.

The first set which went to Kinsey 6-4, after Feret had gotten the lead, 2-1, interrupted an engaging comedy of "baby ball," in which both boys were slow on the job and one of them lost a shoe.

Kinsey was never tempted to deviate from his usual type of twenty-twenty game and reserved plain hard hitting for his overhead shots. His fine temperament was revealed in his pulling up from 4-5 to 5 all in the second set although his errors lost him the final game when he had service.

Partly due to the wind opposing Kinsey, Feret took the set 7-5. Kinsey's imperturbability was not let down when things went wrong for America on the net results by taking the third set, 6-4.

Crowd Cheers Kinsey.

At 3-11, Kinsey looked at the scoreboard and shook his head as if to say: "Now, old fellow, you mustn't let it slip; they're watching at home."

I like this fellow Kinsey immensely. So apparently does Paris, for the crowd gave the victor many sporting cheers.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Miss Mary K. Browne were much too severe, and were better combined in beating Mme. Charaulet and Miss Cousin 6-1, 6-2. The two winners cleverly exploited their middle line tactics.

Peck Benched, Bluege at Short For Senators

Entire Lineup Revamped With Joe Judge in Lead-Off Position.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—After experimenting with several lineups, Manager Bucky Harris of the Washington American League champions hopes he has found a winning combination that will put the club back in the running before long.

The new lineup, which involves the benching of Roger Peckinpaugh, veteran shortstop, went into effect Saturday, and so far has produced two victories, over Boston. In Peck's place is Bluege, who has been playing third, while that corner has been given to Buddy Myer, obtained originally to understudy Peckinpaugh.

McNeely is withdrawn from center field, Goslin taking his place, while the Goose's left-field berth goes to Joe Harris. Rice remains in right field. The lead-off position in the batting order, which has fallen alternately to Rice and McNeely, is given to Joe Judge.

Peck was withdrawn from the game Saturday shortly after he had been presented with his trophy designating him the most valuable player to his club last year.

Champion Loses Eight Pounds as Result of Illness at Hot Springs.

By the Associated Press.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., May 31.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, who was stricken by an attack of chills and fever here Friday night, was reported much improved, though considerably weakened yesterday. Dempsey has lost eight pounds as a result of the ordeal.

His left forearm was still swollen from the large carbuncle, which, Dr. Lautman said, caused a general infection resulting in his illness. The carbuncle was lanced Saturday and was reopened yesterday. Dr. Lautman placed his patient on a soft diet.

Hagenlacher Goes West.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Erie Hagenlacher, world's 182 lb. line champion, left yesterday for Los Angeles, where he is scheduled to play a series of exhibition games with Welker Cochran, June 12.

While on the coast, he hopes to meet Young Jake Schaefer in a match for the world's 181 lb. championship.

Senators Tackle Yankees and Pirates Try to Knock Reds Out of First Place.

By the Associated Press.

Last year's champions are down as the main attractions in the big league baseball tent this week with the Senators in an attempt to rock the Yankees from the American peak and the Pirates, in an effort to upset the Reds from the National pinnacle.

Washington went 11 innings yesterday to take a 4-to-3 decision from the lowly Red Sox and advanced into third place in the standing. The winning run was forced in when Ruffing hit Stan Harris with the bases loaded.

In anticipation of the opening of the series with the Senators today, Col. Ruppert's rifles rattled the Athletics in the final of their four-game meeting to win by 9 to 3. Pennock was master in the box and turned in his eighth consecutive victory before more than 50,000 fans at the Yankee stadium. The Yankees knocked Quinn off the mound in the fifth inning when eight runs were scored.

Lique succumbed under the heavy clouting of the Pirates who defeated the Reds, 4 to 3. Cuyler hung up a circuit smash and Wright uncorked a brace of triples. The Corsairs are now anchored half a game from the second place Cubs and four games from Cincinnati.

The White Sox evened the series with the Tigers by taking the fourth tilt, 6 to 3. Hits mixed with misplays aiding in the triumph. Detroit now holds fourth place in the standing against Chicago by one percentage point.

Brooklyn celebrated its start of a long home stay by deluging the Braves with 14 hits to win by 8 to 2, in 1927.

Rabbit Maranville was back in the Robins' lineup and was active in the attack.

The Giants and Phillies were idle, but meet today in Philadelphia.

The Yankees announced that they would pitch their spring training camp in St. Petersburg, Fla., in 1927.

KANSAS CITY, May 30.—The swimming team of the Heart of America DeMolay Chapter, Kansas City, scored a decisive victory over the allied chapters of Missouri in a match here yesterday, in conjunction with the sixth annual convective of the organization.

First in every event were won by the Kansas City team. R. B. Larmer, St. Joseph, was second in the 100-yard free style event; Al Kennon, Sedalia, was third in the 220-yard free style; E. J. Schoola, St. Louis, finished third in the 50-yard free style; and Newell Mower, Uniondale, was third in the 880-yard free style.

OB LAWSOON of New York, Negro light-heavyweight, scored a technical knockout over Jack Johnson, former world's heavyweight champion, in the seventh round of a 12-round bout in the Juarez (Mexico) coliseum yesterday afternoon.

Johnson apparently had a bid edge in weight over the New York boy and held him off the first few rounds. Lawson gradually began to land his punches, however, and just as the bell rang at the end of the seventh round,

BORAH ASSAILS NEW YORK'S DRY REFERENDUM PLAN

Says Such Plebiscites Are Smoke Screen to Shield Candidates for House and Senate.

"CAN'T HIDE BEHIND STATE'S RIGHTS"

Real Issue, He Asserts, Is Whether American People Can Enforce Their Constitution.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, May 31.—A sweeping attack on every proposal to modify or nullify the eighteenth amendment except by constitutional amendment was made by Senator Borah (Rep.) of Idaho at a popular meeting of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church yesterday.

"No man can hide behind the doctrines of State's rights," he declared.

"There isn't any difference between the doctrine preached in New York and Illinois today and that which a great leader 60 or 70 years ago advanced for South Carolina.

"Suppose some Bolsheviks held a meeting in New York, such as being held by the antiprohibition people, and resolved it was the duty of New York to interpret the first amendment, which deals with free speech, or of the fifth amendment, which supports property interests. The members of that meeting would be put in jail in 48 hours.

"These men of great wealth who have liquor in their homes and who say prohibition can't be enforced, ought to remember they are preaching the same doctrine the Bolsheviks preach—that constitutional government is a failure.

Constitution Binding.
"Faith in the Constitution is essential to fundamental government. The Constitution not only binds people in the ordinary walks of life, but it binds the people of the United States and it binds legislators and Governors of the different states.

"I believe the liquor traffic to be a curse to the human family, whether the liquor is sold in the common saloon or in the common brother, its natural haunt, or sold secretly. Ruin, misery and poverty mark its course.

"Not only is the record of all the centuries against it, but modern business with its delicate machinery also asks that it be banished. The wealthy man in the car may be against prohibition, but he would discharge his chauffeur if he found him drunk. Delegates going to an antiprohibition convention on a train would mob the engineer who had been drinking.

Test of Popular Government.
But even greater than the prohibition question is that of the capacity of the American people for constitutional government. Can they maintain and enforce a law which they have written to the charter of their Government? That is about as severe a test as could be imposed.

"I do not challenge the right of men to work for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. That is their right. But while it is a part of the Constitution, no loyal citizen can encourage its disobedience.

"I do not believe the American people will pursue any such course as is indicated in certain states—enter into a conspiracy to nullify it. Some of the American people may be wet and others dry, but the vast mass of them will reject the proposition, in my judgment."

Borah said he was willing, if the votes were at hand and the procedure was in the orderly, constitutional way, that the prohibition question again be considered "in the light of these years of experience, but I would kick into a waste basket a referendum which proposes to militate against either the spirit or the letter of the Constitution as it stands."

Assails New York Plan.
Here Senator Borah outlined the New York proposal to permit individual states to determine the alcoholic content of intoxicating liquor.

"I challenge any living man here or elsewhere to show what it means if put into effect. You would have 48 different constructions of the Constitution and the Federal Government would have to sit quiet and silent while the states were construing. If it means anything at all it means that each State shall determine for itself its own construction of the Constitution. That drinker was shot to death at the battle of the Wilderness.

RELIEF CORPS PUTS NEW FLAG IN OLD SCYTHE TREE

Historic Hole Near Watertown, N.
H., Has Nearly Overgrown Blade Hung On It.

WATERLOO, N. Y., May 31.—
The Women's Relief Corps of Tyler J. Snyder Post, G. A. R., today hung a new American flag from the historic old "scythe tree," near here.

Some 65 years ago James Wyman Johnson, swinging his scythe
in the fields on his father's farm, heard the roll of drums from Vall schoolhouse calling the countryside to arms for service in the Civil War. He hastened to his home, hung his scythe in the crotch of a Balm of Gilead tree and kissed his parents goodbye, with the injunction to "leave the scythe there until I return."

Johnson never returned. He died in a Confederate prison on May 22, 1864.

The parents refused to believe the news of their son's death, but as the years rolled by and he did not return, they became convinced.
The mother draped the scythe in black. Later the father passed away, and with his death the Relief Corps adopted the custom of hanging a new flag from the tree
each Memorial day.

As the tree grew to maturity,
the scythe blade became firmly imbedded in the trunk and today only a few inches are visible. The Johnson farm, some time ago passed into the hands of the Schaeffer family, and when during the World War Ramond and Lynn Schaeffer left to join the American forces, both hung scythes in the crotch of the tree.

Both returned, but the scythe blades have been left where the soldiers placed them.

Troop Commander Refused to Give cause of Presence of Brigands.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News, Copyright, 1926.

PEKIN, May 31.—Owing to the military movements, as well as bandit activity north and northwest of Pekin, the Asiatic expedition of the American Museum of Natural History has been compelled to abandon its original program of seeking traces of primitive man and more dinosaur eggs in Mongolia.

Since the People's army evacuated Pekin and took up a defensive position to the north of Nakou Pass, the direct route toward the Mongolian Plateau has been closed.

Roy Chapman Andrews, leader of the expedition, has just returned from an attempt to follow a cir-cuitous route northward to Jehol and thence westward into Mongolia. He reached Jehol by motor car, where he found a heavy troop concentration. The Governor refused him passports, stating that the foothills were swarming with brigands.

Andrews said that should conditions later permit, he expected to lead a short expedition into inner Mongolia, but the prospects are gloomy.

ARGUMENT BEGUN ON SCOPES APPEAL IN EVOLUTION CASE

Tennessee Supreme Court Hears Lawyers Discuss Fining of Man for Teaching Darwinian Theory.

VALIDITY OF LAW DIRECTLY ATTACKED

Arthur Garfield Hays
Speaks for Teacher—W.
J. Bryan Jr. Sends Written Argument for State.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 31.—
The Supreme Court of Tennessee was asked today to pass upon the indictment, conviction and sentence of John Thomas Scopes for teaching the theory of evolution in a public school. Scopes' lawyers question the validity of the indictment upon which Scopes was brought to trial at Dayton and fined $100 for violating the anti-evolution act of 1925. In their oral argument they attacked even the constitutionality of the act itself.

The arguments will end tomorrow.

The Supreme Court will either affirm the verdict of Judge John T. Houston at Dayton or reverse the lower court and dismiss the case.

The first question to be decided is whether the indictment for Scopes was valid. If the judges sustain the contention that the indictment does not state the nature of the offense there will be nothing further before the court upon which to act. If the indictment is sustained then the constitutionality of the act will be taken up for consideration. If the act is held constitutional, Scopes' attorneys say they will appeal to the United States Supreme Court, but if it is held invalid the State will not appear.

Unitarians Present Brief.
"There are sincere Christians who do not think the teaching of the evolution theory likely to cause our young people to lose their faith in God or in immortality, or in the sublime teachings of the Holy Bible," Charles Strong of New York, representing the Unitarian Laymen's League, said in an argument in support of a brief filed by the Unitarian church.

Strong said the Unitarian Church was "the only religious body in the United States that has officially taken action to aid in this defense."

He was arguing in behalf of Scopes.

Teaching evolution and the contradictory Bible story of the creation of man has this tragic result, he would not have the same result be reached by teaching that the earth was not made in six days and that the earth was not flat, but round? Each of the teachings is a denial of literalism, and if denial of literalism leads to wreck of faith in one case, why not in the other?"

Argument by W. J. Bryan Jr.
The anti-evolution act was "the deliberate, thoughtful enactment of a sovereign people designed to protect their children in their own public schools in their belief in the divine origin of man, which in-turn insures their responsibility to God and to their fellow man," William Jennings Bryan Jr. declared in his written argument.

"This act," he continued, "contains the protest of the preponderant religious and moral sentiment of the people of Tennessee against the kind of scientific infidelity that was being taught in their schools."

"In reality, broadly speaking,
there are but two issues of law
raised by the pleading in this case.
The first goes into the sufficiency of the indictment. It is the united opinion and weight of authority in this State as well as elsewhere that in crimes of this grade an indictment or information in the language of the act is sufficient."

"The second question—and the only one in the entire case worthy of the court's consideration—is,
whether the act of March 21, 1925, fairly interpreted, can be sustained as a proper and valid exercise of State power in this sovereign State. We respectfully submit that the weight of authority establishes beyond all shadow of doubt that a statute such as this, regulating the conduct of the public schools of the State, is a statute within the constitutional power of the Legislature to enact."

Attacks Validity of Law.
Appealing "for the preservation of our institutions, for the protection of science, for the conservation of liberty of mind and of thought and of education," Arthur Garfield Hays of New York asked the Supreme Court to declare the act unconstitutional.

STUDENTS COLD TO RELIGION, SAYS CHURCH REPORT

Results of Survey of 47 Universities Submitted to Presbyterians — Illinois
"Bereft of Religion."

STANFORD'S "CHAPEL TO UNKNOWN GOD"

Moderator Suggests That Church Has Spent Too Much Time Discussing Doctrinal Differences.

BALTIMORE, May 31.—General indifference to religion by student bodies, with one pronounced "aggressively pagan," is reported in a survey of 47 universities to be presented to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church here today.

The report was compiled by Dr.
M. Willard Lampe, general director of the department of university work, Presbyterian Board of Christian Education.

The Colorado School of Mines is pronounced "one of the most difficult centers for student work in the United States."

The Memorial Church of Leland Stanford Junior University is compared to the Biblical altar to "an Unknown God," while a number of professors at the University of California are said to be "depersonalized God."

The University of Michigan,
however, is pronounced fully cooperative, its activities including the complete support of a missionary and local religious work which is commended in the report.

"Bereft of Bible."
The University of Illinois, the report states, is bereft of chapel, religion and Bible; and the "attractions and distractions" of a city make work difficult at the University of Chicago.

Purdue University, in Indiana, has "no philosophy or ethics or anything to suggest the spiritual side of life," the report continues, while materialistic tendencies are noted at the University of Kansas.

Religion "has been made responsible for the campus," of the University of Montana, the report states, while at the University of Washington, Dr. Lampe finds there is a certain amount of "real reli-gionism on the part of professors and students toward religion and the church."

"Tide of Lawlessness."
An educational system that cultivates the taste and reaches the conscience was pronounced "an effective weapon against the shocking disregard for the sanctity of the law," by Dr. William Chambers Covert, general secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Education, reported.

Calling present conditions "a battle between ideals," he said that "only this can correct the loose thinking and stop the tide of lawlessness and immorality on our campuses and in our schools."

He said that the tide of lawlessness and immorality on our campuses and in our schools is punctuated by the General Assembly session today during an exciting debate which culminated in a fundamental victory in the adoption of a rule for rotating memberships boards. The resolution adopted was a minority report presented by Rev. Mark A. Matthews of Seattle.

The majority of a committee,
headed by Dr. Charles R. Erdman, had recommended that no change be made in the present rule permitting continuing membership on all boards.

Deport Speaker Hissed.
The minority report by Dr.
Matthews requested that this rule be changed to permit a maximum of two terms of three years each,
after which a board member would be required to vacate for one year.

Dr. Matthews, also a former moderator, said that "if you permit new men continually to come on the board you are going to make boards more responsible to the church. He said this also would 'allay suspicion.'"

Dr. Jos. A. Vance, a liberal of Detroit, then made the statement which brought the assembly to its feet. Questioning the mention by Dr. Matthews of possible suspicion, he shouted to the delegates:
"You are under a spell of soap-box oratory for which you will repent at leisure."

Delegates hissed and booed him.
"One of the perils we face," Dr.
Vance continued, "is that we shall be swept off our feet instead of calmly and wisely considering the question."

Too Much Controversy.
The division of fundamentalism and modernism which has focused attention on the Presbyterian Church was dealt sharply with by Dr. William O. Thompson, new moderator, in his sermon yesterday.

The issue may be raised without.

As He Circled in Plane Over North Pole Transmitted by Radio from London

This picture shows a view of the North Pole, taken by Commander R. Byrd in his historic flight, which was sent by radio from London to New York. In the upper part of the photo the full letter "K" and part of the letter "E" of the word "Fokker," which was lettered underneath the wing of Byrd's Fokker plane, can be seen.

er the church has not devoted more energy to controversy than to consecration, whether the winning of men is less important than the winning of controversy," he said.

Beer Argument Questioned.
The fight for prohibition is termed a "contest between law and religion, the home and the school, probity and virtue on one side and anarchy, avarice, appetite and debauchery on the other," in a report to be presented by Dr. Charles Scanlon.

Dr. Scanlon is general director of the Department of Moral Education.

The report questions the argument that light wines and beer cause a decrease in the sale of distilled liquors with the statement that a large consumption of the one parallels large consumption of the other in countries investigated.

A plea for the election next year of Congressmen who will support the Eighteenth Amendment was made with suggestions for more strict law enforcement. These included:

Swift punishment for the violator of the law; make the purchaser equally guilty with the seller; hold the officer failing to enforce the law equally guilty with the law breaker.

Recognizing that there might be no moral difference in women and men smoking the report reached the conclusion that "on account of her more highly organized nervous system and her sacred function of potential motherhood . . . it is regrettable that so many women should seek to place themselves on an equality with men in the lower rather than the higher things of life."

Opposition to a referendum on prohibition was expressed in the report of the Committee of Christian Education.

The report pointing out that compulsory military training has been introduced into 21 high schools and 42 colleges under a special act of Congress, said the assembly "looks with great apprehension on the movement."

The reference to military training raised another division in the Assembly which culminated in that section of the report being tabled
before it finally was adopted.

ARGUMENT FOR FRENCH DEBT RATIFICATION

House Ways and Means Committee Says France Is Worse Off Than Year Ago.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—With the House prepared to take up the $4,025,000,000 French war debt settlement tomorrow, Chairman Green of the Ways and Means Committee, which has jurisdiction over a bill to authorize its acceptance, today made public a committee report advocating ratification of the agreement.

Green also made public a minority report by Representative Rat-ney of Illinois, a Democrat on the committee, opposing acceptance, and asserting that he "cannot see how a member of Congress, under his oath, can vote to give away the enormous amount of money that we are asked to in this settlement."

The chairman, who drafted the committee report reviewed the economic conditions of France and its debts other than to the United States asserting that France began
"the war burdened by a debt large-er than any other nation in the world."

"It is sometimes thought that France is taxed lightly," Green asserted. "While it would appear that the rate in proportion to the national income is somewhat less in France than in England, it must be remembered that the per capita income in England is very much higher than in France, and, being higher, the margin for subsistence left after taxes are paid is much larger for the citizens of England than for those of France."

"It is quite obvious that if the French national finances are to be put on a sound basis three things must be done. First, the budget must be balanced, second, the fran-c must be stabilized at some point, third, a settlement of its foreign debts should be effected on some basis so that there may be a reasonable expectation that payments could be made. These matters are so interlocked that a failure in one respect is almost certain to bring failure in the others."

"It ought to be clear that the condition of France is worse than it was a year ago, and that if und-pressure is put upon it, if it should be rendered unable to take the measures which will be necessary to balance its budget and stabilize its franc, it would be idle to expect anything whatever to be paid on the debt owing this nation."

Ratney asserted it has been reported that as soon as the settlement is ratified a loan of $300-400,000 will be placed by the Morgan and allied banks with France, adding that "it has seemed to me always that these debt settlements are being made and these tremendous sacrifices of the money when belongs to the taxpayers of the United States are being consummated in order that the clients of the New York banks may have opportunities to invest their money in foreign securities, which will yield 2 per cent more than any similar investment."

PILSUDSKI CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF POLAND; DECLINES POST

Marshal Holds Constitution Fails to Protect Head of Government and Give Him Influence.

WARSAW, Poland, May 31.— Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, head of the successful military coup, today refused the presidency of Poland, to which he was elected by the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, sitting as a national assembly.

Pilsudski based his refusal upon the ground of conscientious scruples against the existing Constitution. He recommended the election of Prof. Marjan Zdzichowski of Vilna University or Dr. Ignatz Mosicki, professor of chemistry of Lemberg University.

Pilsudski contends that the present Constitution fails to protect the President against Parliament, and deprives him of the needed executive influence because it fails to give him authority to dissolve Parliament in the case of urgent necessity.

Pilsudski received 292 votes, against 193 for Count Brinski, candidate of the Right parties, the only other nominee.

PLANS INTERNATIONAL LABOR CONGRESS TO MAINTAIN PEACE

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 31.—
The Australian Labor party has decided to convolve a workers' congress at Honolulu, to be attended by all the workers of the countries bordering on the Pacific, "because of the probability that the next war may take place in the neighborhood of the Pacific."

This announcement by John A.
Beasley, Australian workers' delegate, caused a stir at the International Labor Conference today.
Beasley criticized the International Labor Office for doing nothing to prevent wars, and said Australia was convinced that a meeting of the Pacific workers would do much toward maintaining world peace.

Floyd Bennett, who piloted the Byrd plane over the pole, has asked
the correspondent to clarify an ambiguous statement, published regarding his advice at the time a
leak in the gasoline was discovered
eight and a half hours from the pole. Bennett at first wished to land and try to repair it, but this Byrd did not want to do. Landing
to repair the damaged motor
would take an hour, and Bennett suggested then that they reach the
pole first and take chances of
coming back with two engines.

Bennett thought that the article
indicated that he favored returning
when the leak was discovered,
which was not at all the case. Bennett hopes to go again to the North Pole and land on the ice there.

2000-MILE FLIGHT WITHOUT STOPPING

Continental Land With Peaks 10,000 Feet High Offers Complications Unknown in North.

the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
LONDON, May 30.—Although he is not ready to announce definite plans for further explorations, Commander Byrd has discussed his hopes for taking a trip to the South Pole. The trip there involves twice as great a risk as his successful trip to the North Pole.

"A man at the South Pole is 1000 miles from anywhere," he said, "while at the North Pole I was only 650 miles from my flying base. The trip to the South Pole will have to be in all probability,
a non-stop flight, almost as long as a journey across the Atlantic from Ireland to Newfoundland. It will mean 2000 miles there and back, a stout test even in the present state of aviation."

"Rigorous climatic conditions will have to be faced. There will be the constant risk of things freezing."

"Blizzards out of nowhere and snow obscuring the sun may deprive one of the use of the sun compass, the only guide, while a storm below the machine, blotting out the ground, might cause the plane to crash to the earth."

Mountains 10,000 Feet High.
"There are two other complications at the South Pole. There is a continental land with mountains as high as 10,000 feet, so that in the first place, one might fly into a peak if one were not careful. In the second place, violent eddies of wind may be expected, whirling about the peaks and out of the valleys, whereas at the North Pole,
the wind has a flat expanse to blow over."

"But there will be one advantage in the Antarctic that we did not have in the Arctic. The northern pole is covered by the ocean with slabs of ice on which alighting and taking off is very difficult and dangerous for an airplane. The South Pole, being on land, is a snow-covered spot, and I have found by experience that skis attached beneath the machine will permit landing and taking off on snow. So it is quite on the cards that it would be able to light on the spot which Scott reached only after innumerable weary crawling miles. Giant skis will have to be attached to it. Those I had at the North Pole were too small."

Where Scott Starred.
"The best jumping-off place for the South Pole is the great ice barrier from which Scott set out. I will probably start from there. It is difficult to say exactly when I will go. This year it is out of the question. If I go at a time next year, spring is impossible, for though at that time the weather is best at the North Pole, it is worst at the South. We should be steeped in eternal night for months if we went then. Autumn is more likely, but it is still a long time before the necessary support, such as food,
this north polar flight both possible and successful. As for me, I am all for it."

The young commander also hopes to do further exploring off Cape Columbia, Etah, where he is certain land exists. It is probable that he and Bennett will take this trip before one to the South Pole.
Commander Byrd was the guest at luncheon yesterday of Ambassador Houghton. He met a score of distinguished British army and naval officers and their wives. Last night he was the dinner guest of Capt.
Watts, the American naval attache.

Floyd Bennett, who piloted the Byrd plane over the pole, has asked
the correspondent to clarify an ambiguous statement, published regarding his advice at the time a
leak in the gasoline was discovered
eight and a half hours from the
pole. Bennett at first wished to land and try to repair it, but this Byrd did not want to do. Landing
to repair the damaged motor
would take an hour, and Bennett
suggested then that they reach the
pole first and take chances of
coming back with two engines.

Bennett thought that the article
indicated that he favored returning
when the leak was discovered,
which was not at all the case. Bennett hopes to go again to the North

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

To Lay Up, or Shoot for It?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

AMERICAN sportsmen without exception found a pleasurable sensation in the victory of Jess Sweetser in the British amateur golf championship. That title is the blue ribbon of the golfing world, and it was won last week for the first time by a native of this continent. That young Mr. Sweetser learned the game upon the links of Normandy, in St. Louis County, gives added satisfaction to St. Louisans and especially to the members of that hard-playing golf club, Normandy and its rolling hills are devoted to golf. The social element is secondary and there are no tennis courts. Golf of the stern, dour kind is played upon its tricky fairways, but pure sportsmanship is held in higher regard.

It is a question whether Sweetser played the last hole in his international match according to the best Normandy traditions. That hole, the thirteenth, is only 128 yards long. The narrow fairway was lined with the flower of British golfing chivalry. The nearby hills were crowded. The polite silence was perfect, and from the muted gallery floated the faint bouquet of Scotch whisky. It was a time for a great effort in the finest manner.

Sweetser was dromie six and his tee shot was on the green. His opponent went into a trap, but was out with his niblick, and he holed a long putt for a three. Having the hole would win for Sweetser, who had a shorter putt than his opponent had just holed. There was also the opportunity for the American to sink his putt and win the match and the world's championship with a winning hole. He did not do that; he laid up, a foot short of the hole, and sank an easy putt for a three. If that putt had gone a foot beyond the hole, all would have been serene.

That is not exactly the Normandy method. For a win, they shoot for the hole at Normandy, and give the back of the cup a chance. NORMANDIE.

Nightwatchman Needed in Sherman Park

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT HAS come to my notice since the very hot weather, that people have been enjoying the fresh air in Sherman Park, which is an oasis in that vicinity for folks, old and young, to enjoy a nice rest and the comfortable benches placed there this season.

However, I wish to call attention to the fact that some boys who frequent that park are anything but gentlemen, and I believe the park is in very much need of a watchman. There was a watchman there last season, but none this, and, of course, the people who go in the park are being embarrassed by the language and the actions of some of these boys, averaging in age from 14 to 15 years.

It is horrible to hear some of the language that these boys utter when running and racing around that place. Last evening, for instance, about two dozen boys were racing around that park with their shirts off. Now, that should not be. Kindly see, therefore, that the people who enjoy this free park are not embarrassed all summer by such conduct. K. A. S.

"Salus Populi Suprema Est Lex."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR editorial entitled "What Interests the Public" was indeed a worthy adjunct to the editorial page of Sunday's Post-Dispatch. And considering I contribute to the letter column, I beg to say a word.

It is, I am sure, the desire of regular contributors to please the public. But it must not be forgotten that a large percentage, if not all of these contributors, are not in the literary limelight enough to rely wholly upon the proceeds of their profession, and so are engaged in the various occupations that comprise a commonwealth—make up a city. Only their spare moments are devoted to this endeavor, and they give as much time and forethought as they can to it.

Regular contributors unlike reporters, are not given our assignments; we seek them. And after they are found, there is the writing, the risk of not pleasing the editor as well as the public. We are, in the parlance of the jazz age, only appreciation comes from the editors who, recognizing our literary ambitions, assist us by accepting our good topics, rejecting our bad ones.

Having chosen as a leading for this letter the motto of Missouri, "The Welfare of the People Is the Supreme Law," I shall be glad to hear from anyone who study and write about.

MARIE G. EWING.

NO MORE SECRET TRIALS

Our habits are for public trial and investigation, and our liberties will last as long as our trials are public, and not a moment more.

That statement was made by the great American lawyer, Rufus Choate. It sets forth, in philosophic solemnity, the vital principle involved in the Rutherford case.

Young Rutherford never stood trial. The court proceeding was not in truth a trial. It was a pre-arranged affair. The real trial was conducted in secret conferences. The plea of guilty to manslaughter was secretly arranged, the nominal punishment of the $500 fine was secretly agreed upon, the price had been secretly fixed and secretly paid.

The secrecy cracked. The weak spot in the conspiracy to frustrate a fair, honest, public trial was the prosecution's excuse that the witnesses on whom it relied were missing. Newspaper inquiry blasted that excuse when it showed that some of the allegedly missing witnesses were in the courtroom when the Assistant Circuit Attorney made that statement and that others were ready to testify if called upon.

That exposure brought the State of Missouri into the case. The State, in the person of Attorney-General Gentry, is pressing its investigation with energy and resolution. The outcome of this investigation, as regards the individuals involved, cannot be forecast. But it may be stated unqualifiedly that Attorney-General Gentry has inspired the greatest public confidence in his ability and determination to perform his full duty.

And this prediction may confidently be made: It will be a long time before the Circuit Attorney's office in St. Louis again recommends a fine of $500 for manslaughter.

It will be a long time before a Circuit Judge in St. Louis again agrees to accept such a recommendation. It will be a long time before any St. Louis lawyer again undertakes to negotiate another Rutherford deal.

Secret trials for drunken brawlers who kill bell-boys, accidentally or otherwise, are ended in St. Louis for a long, long time.

"Our habits are for public trials."

"Our liberties will last as long as our trials are public, and not a moment more."

TO HER WHO IS DYING.

Only a few hours are left her. Soon she must die. Shall we not tell her, while yet she lingers, how divinely fair she has been.

She has graced the world. Her name is a talisman. It conjures all of loveliness. Whenever we hear that name we shall see blossom drifts and leagues of emerald. We shall see the squandered bloom of apple trees, the white plum's lyric mystery, the wistaria weaving purple desire on the elms, the dewberry's foam-flecked trails, the blush of the wild rose in far, dim cloisters, the spiderwort's gold and purple, the honey locust's fragrant gesture.

We shall see the tanager's scarlet splash and wave a return to the oriole's debonair salute. We shall remember the myrtle warbler's silver note as he paused to forage on his northern flight. We shall hear the brown thrasher's twilight aria and—doubt it though you may—we shall hear that same fine reveler's Dionysian stave to a bland old midnight moon.

We have eaten your "fairy bread," drunk your "enchanted wine." Good-by, dear, lovely, dying May.

SAFETY HOPES AND SUNDAY SMASHES.

The St. Louis Safety Council has done excellent educational work to reduce accidents, but the record of automobile casualties for yesterday, when one man was killed and 19 injured, including six women and three children who are not expected to live, proves that we are hardly at the beginning of an effective movement to minimize the weekly per when thousands of automobile drivers, bent on pleasure, add to the motor traffic, and other thousands of pedestrians make driving more than usually difficult.

Industrial accidents have been reduced from 42 to 20 since 1919 as a result of the safety campaign. Deaths from steam railway accidents fell from 23 to 14. Accidents to school children fell from 49 to 31. But fatalities from automobile accidents have risen from 97 to 192, according to the Safety Council's figures.

And these automobile accidents too often carry with them the stigma of felony, when drivers, after killing or maiming, flee from the scene.

We have traffic rules and laws galore. More may be needed. But back of all rules and regulations must be an earnest realization on the part of everyone that the safety of the other fellow is of more importance than speed or pleasure. That attitude must be the result of education. The Safety Council must carry on.

WHERE DOES MR. RUSSELL STAND?

E. J. Russell is chairman of the City Plan Commission and was chairman of the Zoning Commission.

E. J. Russell is also a member of the firm of Mauran, Russell & Crowell, architects.

As chairman of the City Plan Commission, Russell was a foremost advocate of a zoning ordinance, and of the preservation of the beauty of Lindell boulevard.

As chairman of the Zoning Commission he helped to draft the zoning ordinance which is now in effect. As a member of the firm of Mauran, Russell & Crowell, however, Russell apparently is fighting the law of which he is part author, and cares nothing about the preservation of the residential beauty of Lindell boulevard.

At any rate, here is what has happened: J. L. Mauran, of Russell's firm, applied to Building Commissioner Christopher for a permit to build an automobile salesroom at the corner of Lindell boulevard and Sarah street. This was on May 25, one day before the zoning ordinance went into effect. The permit was refused on the two-fold ground that it would violate the new zoning law and also the 1925 ordinance against the construction of business houses on Lindell. The Building Commissioner acted on an opinion given him by the City Counselor.

That, however, did not settle the case. A mandamus suit was immediately filed in the Circuit Court on behalf of the automobile company to force the Building Commissioner to issue the permit.

In the meantime, in another case, Judge Ittner was issuing a ruling that, prior to May 26, the new zoning law was non-existent and the Building Commissioner must not consider it in any request for a permit. This seems to nullify the City Counselor's opinion. However, there is yet a chance to save Lindell boulevard.

Where does Mr. Russell stand in this matter? Is he on the side of Chairman Russell of the City Plan Commission and of Chairman Russell of the Zoning Commission? Or is he pulling for Architect Russell, of the firm of Mauran, Russell & Crowell, which is trying to accommodate a client?

THE DAY.

Today the veterans of three wars will gather for the annual formal decoration of the graves of their comrades and of men who fell in conflicts still earlier.

The great republic has been fortunate in having waged no war except in the name of free government of the people, by the people, for the people. Even the conflict with Mexico, sordid enough in some of its aspects and consequences, was not without that justification which makes popular appeal, in the treatment of the Texan prisoners by Mexican authority.

So the American soldier has marched to many a battlefield in a cause he honored. He has given his life simply, valiantly, cheerfully. His manhood suffered all, endured all, triumphed over all.

We have been less fortunate in our statesmen, to whom has fallen the task of after-war leadership. We have yet to show that wisdom matches valor in our great national tests. We have yet to assure to each his own in brotherhood, unexposed by senseless strife between the Haves and Have Nots. We have yet to realize that brotherhood should span the seas and that we cannot if we would live cloistered from the world. We have been passing through a period of reaction, of disillusion, in a glut of material wealth that has seemed to dull the Spartan capacity for endurance, the Puritan instinct for self-sacrifice and for duty which have colored our history. We shall need for our own sakes, we shall need for the sake of that leadership in the world which we can neither decline nor evade, to restudy the meaning of the republic, to reinforce its aims in freedom of act and opinion, in tolerance, in unity, in mutual understanding.

With that high purpose we can take pride in the thought that the dead whose day it is gave their lives to no mean cause.

SWEETSER AND THE NORMANDIE TRADITION.

Jess Sweetser, first American to win the British amateur golf championship, learned the letters of the game at Normandy, the Gethsemane of our local courses. He did not graduate from that hard school and so did not get his doctor's degree in the philosophy of Normandy sportsmanship. Wherefore, he failed to measure up to the par of Normandy tradition in last week's blue-ribbon test.

Why and how he failed are sadly related in Letters From the People. Sweetser should not have been content to halve that final hole. He should have tried, in the grand manner, to sink that putt and thus have written victory with the flourish of a tour de force. Anyhow, that is what his critic says.

To which we say, Toss! This was a golf match. It was not a joust of old. Jess was there as a golfer, not a knight errant. He played sound golf on that last green, honorable golf and, therefore, sportsman-like golf. He might, to be sure, have essayed a grandiose effort, missed his big chance, postponed the finish and even jeopardized the result. That would have been pure boob. If Normandy's "best tradition" calls for that sort of grandstanding, then the Normandy club might well bury its best tradition in any one of the 647 traps that scar the Via Dolorosa of its 18 holes.

NOT SO DOWNTRODDEN.

There is no mistaking the agitation for farm relief legislation. The corn belt, particularly the Iowa corn belt, was thoroughly dissatisfied with prices for last year's crop, and statistics reveal that a considerable number of farmers believe they can do better in the cities, and so desert the soil.

This agitation and this desertion of rural population should not, however, conjure up a picture of vicissitudes and famine in the countryside. A farmer's wife writes to a Kansas newspaper that she is intensely weary of being asked if she is reconciled to life on a farm. She was, in fact, jubilant about it, and was asking for relief from the sob sisters who can see only a drab and dreary existence away from the bright lights and the pavements.

Farming, in fact, isn't much like it was in the days when a number of cartoonists formed their idea of a husbandman as a hungry individual with a corn-cassel whisker and cowhide boots. Motor cars have brought the towns and cities nearer to the farm. Telephones have ended the isolation of other years and made listening over the party line something of a national pastime. The radio enables the farmer to be exposed to music of all kinds to the same extent as his urban neighbor, and the rural route carriers deliver their quota of metropolitan newspapers and magazines.

Nor is the drudgery what it was in the days of homespun raiment and walking plows. The farm day is long through the summer of cultivation and harvest, but a painstaking statistician has figured that the farmer works no more in the course of a year than the eight-hour employe of manufacturing industry. He has his wrongs, as have most of us, but there are ever so many of them that he doesn't hear of until he comes to town and listens to a spell binder with congressional aspirations.

Jess Sweetser is the George Washington of golf.

ON MARRYING A BANKER'S DAUGHTER

She is not fair to outward view.

As many maidens are.

Her loveliness I never knew

Until I saw her car.

And now she is my ideal mate.

I love to drive in her straight-eight.

Though fairer maidens I have seen,

All made of milk and honey.

For she is made of money.

Though for her lips I do not hanker,

Her father is our leading banker!

Though in a love nest built for two

With her I couldn't live.

Perhaps a banker's house would do—

It's not so primitive.

Besides a shack in Saginaw

Would be away from pa-in-law.

And though for love I'd starve before

I told her that her biscuits

Were very hard upon the floor,

I'd force her to cry quits.

To all her cries I would be deaf;

"My dear, you know we have a chef."

And though her death would be a blow

That I would have to bear,

The Law would duly put, I know,

Her money in my care.

Her memory I would appease.

And go my lonesome way in case.

LORD HOWE DUMB.

All our life we have been a sort of a joke

In whatever community we happened to reside in. We have been walked on, cuffed around, made the brunt of all the gags, cussed because we are not rich, raved at because we do or do not do this thing or that thing. We have done with and without. We have been the fall guy in politics, religious circles and as a man about town.

We have lived on what a sparrow would have starved to death on. We have boasted

the town, the school, the churches, private and public institutions, helped our friends

gratify a personal greed for pelf, told of the beautiful brides and the sterling young men, put the things in the paper that should have been left out and left out what we ought to have published, had to stay at home because our clothes did not have the right whang, been left out because we were a rotten financier and not the possessor of a lot of the things other folks could not have had if they had not been given to them. And we have done all of these things and been all of these things for one

SNAP SHOTS.

He sat a long time with his hands folded staring at the sunset like a picture in a dentist's waiting room.

Two pigeons with metal green necks and feet of coral waddled back and forth on the scorching pavement.

The jeweled stripes on the window ran straight down when the train stopped, but got more and more oblique as it speeded up.

An old shingled house with quaint turrets like fat little breasts stood back from the street among the snowball bushes.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

THE DECALOGUE AND MODERN LAWS

From the Modern View.

THROUGH courtesy of "The Post-Dispatch" we print the Pulitzer prize-winning cartoon, "The Law of Moses and the Law of Today." This cartoon is by Fitzpatrick and appeared in the Post-Dispatch. It was declared to be the best cartoon of any published during the year in the United States.

The graphic contrast between on one hand, the two tablets of stone with the Ten Commandments and on the other side the mass of modern statutes, is impressive and illuminating. The ancient Tacitus said: "When the State is most corrupt, then the laws are most multiplied."

"Back to the Ten Commandments!" would be a timely slogan. It seems to be in order now to return to the Decalogue, even though Prohibition is not mentioned in the prohibitions!

Our modern civilization is more complicated truly, than in days when Moses led the people of Israel through the wilderness to Canaan and from deep ignorance to wisdom, sanity and understanding.

Despite this fact, the world has not outgrown the Decalogue. Whether the tables came supernaturally, from on high through fire and flame, on Sinai, or naturally through experience and thought through fire of human righteousness that flamed out of the sages from within their noble minds—the need of them applies today.

If men would concede a Creator, as the first statement asserts, they would be far more humble. Many modern men, including capitalists and captains of industry, consider themselves totally self-made!

If men would have no idols (as the second injunction urges), (and what are money, pleasure-seeking, fame—folly and lust for power, but modern idols?)—the world would be far happier.

If men would not be blasphemous, but be more reverent, life would be more dignified and stately.

If men rested on the day of rest (regardless of which one) and allowed a rest to others—the purpose of the Fourth Commandment would be attained with beneficial value.

If children respected more their parents and parents were more worthy of respect, the Fifth Commandment would solve the most serious of our present-day calamities, the growth of juvenile crime.

If the Sixth Commandment was obeyed, there would be no Loeb-Leopolds, Mollows, Rutherfordors or war!

If there was no adultery as the Seventh Statute forbids, scandal would die. The yellow press would perish! Morality would prosper.

If the Eighth were heeded (not to steal) rogues, big and little, those within and those without the law, the bank robber and bandit, the corrupt politician all would be no more!

If perjury (false witness) would be truly ousted from the world, the devil's sharpest weapon, falsehood, would be blunted and demolished! He is the handle that fits all vicious tools.

If covetousness would be banished from the human heart, envy and malice would depart. Love, fellowship, fraternity would enter and the Tenth Commandment would make earth a heaven!

What is there to be legislated against after murder, theft, adultery and greed are gone? What need of statutes after reverence and fraternity, filial love and just become implanted in the social system?

BYRD AND AMUNDSEN MOVIES SHOWN HERE

Race to Get Films of North Pole Flights to St. Louis Theaters Ends in Tie.

An airplane race to get the first motion pictures of the Byrd and Amundsen North Pole flights to St. Louis theaters ended in a tie yesterday afternoon when the films were delivered to the Missouri and Loew's State theaters by rival movie news agencies.

The pictures were shown in both houses at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, about the same time they were being offered in Chicago, and only a few hours later than they got their first showing in this country in New York, where they were put on the screen Saturday night.

Two other sets of pictures of the same expeditions arrived here this morning and at least one of them will be given a special showing in a theater engaged for that purpose. The films shown yesterday were taken at King's Bay, Spitzbergen, where the sunlight was apparently excellent for fast photography, for the pictures are remarkably clear and sharp. The films of Commander Byrd's flight show Byrd and his companions arriving at Spitzbergen on the steamship Chantier and being welcomed by Amundsen, who was preparing for his own polar dash. The landing and assembling of the Fokker plane which Byrd used is pictured and then the plane, which flew over the pole in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and New York Times editions, is seen taking the air after a startling slide down an ice and snow coated hill. Pictures were made of the plane in the air until it faded out of sight.

Next come the motion picture views of the return of Commander Byrd after his historic dash around the pole. The plane is seen in the sky on its way back and there are some fine close-ups of its landing at Spitzbergen, where Byrd is enthusiastically welcomed. Amundsen being one of the first to congratulate him.

The pictures of the start of the Amundsen flight from the same place are more spectacular. The arrival of the dirigible, the Norge, after its long trip from Rome, is shown and then come the preparations for the trip. Several hundred men are seen holding the ropes of the big airship and when they let go it takes the air gracefully and starts on its journey. There are many close-up shots of Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth, the American who accompanied him, and other interesting sidelights of the start of the trip. The difficulties under which both Commander Byrd and Amundsen worked in getting under way in frozen Spitzbergen are graphically pictured and the films are valuable records of history-making events.

Cornerstone of Croatian Gymnastic Building Laid

Speaker Announces $200,000 Structure Was Paid for in Three Months' Campaign.

The cornerstone of the $200,000 building of the Croatian Sokol Gymnastic Society was laid yesterday afternoon at 1431-35 Broadway avenue. Conrad Paeben, an attorney, who was introduced by Vincent Budvich, chairman of the Croatian Turning Society, announced that the property had been paid for and $50,000 of a bond issue of $100,000 had been subscribed in less than three months.

The building will have a swimming pool, showers and gymnasium on the first floor, and seven offices, a meeting hall and a larger auditorium on the second. It will contain six stories.

After the cornerstone laying, the gathering met across the street in Croatian Turning Hall, where speakers complimented the Croatian community on the success of their endeavor and emphasized the value of community life in making good Americans of the Slavs.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

ONE of the most unique parties to celebrate the holiday is the annual "Field Meet" at Zelco Hall, the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarkson Carpenter, on the Florissant road, in honor of Miss Dorcas Carr Taylor, debutante niece of the hosts and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lackland Taylor.

About 75 guests have been invited for 4 o'clock to participate in a series of races, including a "three-legged race for two-legged people"; mixed doubles; potato race for ladies and men; a similar event for men and girls; sack race, 10 yards to a finish; a debutante hand-dicap and "lovers' leap" under the direction of Henry Garnau, who will be master of ceremonies.

The lawn has been decorated with flags, and a group of children, including Clarkson Carpenter Jr., will distribute popcorn and peanuts. Programs and results of the three preceding parties at the Carpenter home have been posted for the perusal of the guests, with a program of today's events.

A buffet supper will follow the races, and later there will be dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Wendling of 4509 Pershing avenue and their two children, Peggy and Ann Haldeman, will depart July 5 for Burlington, Cal., to spend a month with Mrs. Wendling's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Leib, who have taken a cottage with the Leibs at Santa Barbara and will spend the remainder of the summer there.

Mrs. Wendling returned Saturday from Louisville, where she has been visiting her mother, Mrs. John Avery Haldeman.

Louisville society will be represented at the Derby at Fairmount, to be run June 12. Mr. and Mrs. Will Wymonds and Mr. and Mrs. Breaux Ballard will be the guests of St. Louis friends at the St. Louis Country Club and Mr. Sam Stone will visit Mr. and Mrs. George Wendling.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynn N. Secord of 10 North Kingshighway will entertain a large group of friends at luncheon at the St. Louis Country Club today in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer.

A group of St. Louisans, including Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lackland Taylor of 4807 Maryland avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Christy Bryan, Dr. and Mrs. Elsworth Smith, Mrs. Cornelius Tompkins, Miss Quin Baskwell and Clarkson Carpenter Jr., Philip Smith, son of Dr. and Mrs. Smith and Ned Taylor returned this morning from Arcadia, Mo., where they spent the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Ver Steeg of 4446 Lindell boulevard will depart July 1 for East Gloucester, Mass., where they will spend a month at the Rockaway Hotel.

The Tercentenary Shakespeare Society is arranging a dinner in honor of Thomas Wood Stevens and the Sayer Goodman Memorial Theater Co. of Chicago, who are to appear in the Garland Theater dramatic season, which will open June 14 with "A Midsummer Night's Dream." The dinner will be given in the Garden Theater Tea Room Friday evening, June 11.

Mrs. Samuel F. Swantes of 5774 Westminster place, and her mother, Mrs. Boyd C. Caldwell, will depart early in June for California. Dr. Swantes will join them in July for an extended visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Barry Towne of New York, who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Thompson of Hotel Chase, departed today for a motor trip South. Mrs. Towne left before her marriage a month ago.

MISS LUCINDA CLEMENTS
Leading part in Sheridan's "The Rivals" to be presented by the Senior Class of Webster College tomorrow evening.

was Miss Ruth Rendleman of Hotel Chase.

Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Macdonald of 19 Hampton Park, and their two sons, left Saturday to spend a fortnight at Lake Geneva, Wis.

Mrs. C. B. Judd of 501 Warren avenue was hostess at a bridge luncheon Saturday to announce the engagement of her sister, Miss Ann Leonard, to Dr. Albert A. Link. The wedding will take place June 19 at St. Barbara's Church and will be followed by a luncheon at the Gatesworth Hotel.

Mrs. P. Viviano of 6948 Washington boulevard has issued cards for a buffet supper and dance June 10, for her daughters, the Misses Grace and Vita Viviano.

The Senior Class of Webster College, Webster Groves, will present "The Rivals" by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, Tuesday evening in the auditorium of the college. The senior play is an annual feature of Commencement Week and as this year is the sequentennial of Sheridan the play selected is singularly appropriate. The cast includes Miss Genevieve Barthel, Miss Lucy Miss Renold, Miss Margaret Monney, Miss Frances Sturges, Miss Margaret Peters, Miss Louise Murphy, Miss Nan Shalloss and Miss Mary Elizabeth Newell.

The hostesses for the Tuesday bridge luncheon at North Hills Country Club this week will be Mrs. George D. Will and Miss Virginia Schaub.

Misses Marie and Helen Murnane, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Murnane of 5133 Raymond avenue, announced a luncheon-bridge Monday afternoon in honor of Miss Marie Guyon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Guyon of 5566 De Giverville avenue. Miss Guyon will become the bride of Joseph D. Murnane June 2. The wedding will take place at St. Roch's Church.

New Films

By NIE.

FOR some unknown reason Bebe Daniels, who is certainly a clever screen actress and far from being unattractive, has long been thrust into silly little motion pictures which start nowhere and are about an hour in passing that point. Indeed few of them ever succeed in getting any farther at all in "The Palm Beach Girl," at the Missouri this week. Bebe shows that she is still an energetic and entertaining star and if one does not take his amusement too seriously he will enjoy this nonsensical and thoroughly impossible little story. If given half a chance with a good comedy drama Miss Daniels should climb back into the list of popular Paramount stars—who, by the way, are not as numerous as they used to be. "The Palm Beach Girl" is backed up by as splendid show, "Kandyland," a dance revue, is the best of the stage offerings imported from New York which the Missouri has so far offered.

Dressed, as all Americans are, in colorful entertainers, are a riot although most of their stuff has been heard here before.

So This is Paris.

CHARLEY RAY, disguised, rather thinly, to be sure, as an American gentleman, is the hero of "Paris" down at Loew's. Dressed, as all Americans are, in colorful entertainers, are a riot although most of their stuff has been heard here before.

Ride 'Em Cowboy.

IN THE days before the Real War when the Boys in Blue were really marching in blue and bobbed hair on women, and wrist watches on men were looked upon with suspicion "Ransom's Folly," which is at the Grand Central, Lyric Skydome and Capitol, was a pretty good melodrama. Times have changed. The blue uniforms have given way to khaki, the popola is the last word in feminine innocence, the World War made the wrist watch respectable and the old-fashioned mellers have retired in favor of sex appeal dramas. "Ransom's Folly" would have been considered pretty fine a dozen years ago, but today it is just another Western.

Good Western Stuff.

ZANE GREY'S "Desert Gold" at Kines and Rivoli this week. Is of the stuff that small boys day dreams are made. Seeing it one almost believes that men really did get into terrible jams out in the desert. Had West of the 90's, and were rescued by noble college men and degenerate Yaqui Indians. There is action from start to finish in this one. A Spanish senorita, a young cavalry officer, a college youth form the triangle. There is a villain who works at villainy from sun to sun—in fact, his work is never done. The villain, a bandit chief, chases the senorita and the college youth out into the desert while the cavalry officer who loves the senorita tries to get help and rescue them. They are saved by a self-sacrificing Yaqui who rolls a boulder and starts a landslide, engulfing the bandit herd as they swoop down upon our hero and the lady fair. The senorita decides she loves the college boy more than the cavalry officer, and the C. O. generously gives her up to his friend. This is one of the best Westerns to come along in some time. Take little Willie.

Just Laura Jean Libbey.

"WHEN LOVE GROWS wildly" at the St. Louis. This week is a clinging vine after Laura Jean Libbey, that just winds and winds about your heart strings until you feel dandorously near succumbing to angina pectoris. It tells the sad tale of a weakling whose wife makes him rich, and then the poor sap goes off and plays with other girls when he ought to be grateful to his wife. The villain is a business man who loves the wife—Mrs. Rudolph Valentino—and oh, how that rascal schemes to get her. But Mrs. Rudolph Valentino knows her sheik. A shifty glance is nothing to her. She spurns the villain and is so very faithful to her husband that finally he is ashamed into coming back to the old-fashioned fireside. Mrs. Valentino, who was one of the Hudnut girls before she married Rudy, looks very much like the Countess d'Albany. She goes in for original costume and queer coiffures, but as an actress she's not much.

FAREWELL SERVICES FOR THE REV. HENRY W. MIZNER

Pastor of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church Honored on Eve of His Departure for Florida.

Farewell services were held yesterday morning at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Sixth and Kutger streets, in honor of the Rev. Henry Watson Mizner, who has resigned as rector after 25 years spent there in church and social settlement work. Three generations were represented in the congregation that was urged by him to "hold-fast to the Apostolic Church and never be led astray by man-made doctrines and selfish theories."

This morning Dr. Mizner officiated at a celebration in Christ Church Cathedral in honor of the thirtieth anniversary of his ordination to the ministry by the late Bishop Tuttle. Tomorrow night there will be a farewell reception at St. Stephen's for Dr. and Mrs. Mizner.

The new rector of St. Stephen's is the Rev. Roy Spencer Rawson, assistant for the last three years. Dr. and Mrs. Mizner will take up residence at Boca Raton, Fla., where a church for Dr. Mizner is to be built by his brother, Addison Wright, the noted architect, in memory of their mother.

DEPOSITION OF WIDOW TAKEN IN CONTEST OF WILL

Mrs. Martha Snyder Wilson, 59, Married Retired Laundry Owner at His Deathbed, Oct. 2, Last.

Mrs. Martha Snyder Wilson, who was married to Charles Henry Wilson, 70 years old, a retired laundry owner, on his deathbed, Oct. 2 last, at their home, 4625 Maryland avenue, has admitted in a deposition in a suit contesting her inheritance of his $75,000 estate, that she had lived with him as man and wife since 1911.

The will making her his heir was written when he was propped up in bed two days before their marriage, she said. Two women cousins of Wilson are contesting on the ground he was of unsound mind at the time. Under an earlier will they would have received $5000 each. Mrs. Wilson $13,000 and friends and charity would have gotten the rest. Mrs. Wilson is 59 years old.

Mrs. Wilson declared in the deposition that her husband often had declared he would marry her whenever he could give up "his chickens." Her first husband, Sam Snyder, died in 1910. Mr. Wilson used to tell her, the witness said, that he wasn't ready to marry right away, but they could live together and when he died she would get everything he had.

Tells of Promises.

"You will be my heir when I am gone," she quoted him as saying. "If you outlive me, every dollar will go to you." She agreed to the plan. "Something when I can settle down," she declared he would say, "and be true to one woman as I want her to be to me, then we will marry."

Last August, she related, he suggested marriage about Thanksgiving and departure to Florida, "because I never expect to spend another winter in this climate." Again, in the middle of September, the day he suffered a paralytic stroke, she said he talked of marriage. Four or five days later, in the presence of a nurse, she asserted, he proposed to her to get a marriage license, speaking "like a child learning to talk," but she replied they would have to go together to make application.

License Clerk Visited House.

He wouldn't agree when she insisted to wait till he could get out of bed. Mrs. Wilson continued, so a marriage license clerk was induced to visit the house Oct. 1. The next night, she said, the Rev. Russell Whiteside, a Baptist minister, officiated at a marriage ceremony for them at Wilson's bed. Her husband asked for his trousseau and took $20 from a pocket to pay the clergyman. A nurse and another woman were witnesses.

Wilson told her there were things in his original will which he wanted changed. Mrs. Wilson averred, adding that one night a barber and a "gray-haired man" called on him and he motioned for her to leave the room. She thought he was going to get a shave. Later, she was summoned and, she said, he handed her the new will, with the remark, "This is what I think of you." The last will made Mrs. Wilson the sole heir because of "numerous acts of kindness" toward the testator.

Mrs. Wilson denied that she had exerted any influence to have the estate bequeathed to her.

WILD GEESSE

by Martha Ostenso

CHAPTER SEVEN.

IN the great stone house on the lake, dwelt four generations of Bjarnassons. Old Erik, who among the first of the Icelanders to settle at Aeland, had seen land pass in turn from his son to his son's son. Erik was well in his eighties now, a time for naming much and fishing a little when the sun was warm on the lake rocks in the cove. Young Erik, his grandson, had married a girl from the city and had a son and now sent his child to Aeland School. It was Erik's father, Mathias, who built the stone house. Mathias was a massive man, 60 years, but eternal in endurance, eternal in warmth and hospitality. The house he had built with his own hands was like him, a square stone image of him, with a square stone image of him. It was rugged, lasting foundation; it hauled stones in slow wagon-loads, and with the care and finesse of a woman patterning lace, it fitted them together in the mortar and had built four broad porches to the lake.

In all that region, there was not another house like it. Like a welcome, its western windows were aflame with light from red sun, when Andres and Helga came up the road with the Teacher. Below the house lay the lake, bright through and through with water and rose.

Helga escorted Lind into the use.

The immaculate kitchen had a trim, good smell, like cinnamon. The floor was white as bread. On the round, braided rag mats of light, clear colors.

Helga's mother had never been to Iceland, but her English was so good that it halted here and there. Such was the isolation of the place.

"You will like coffee, now, may-?" she said to Lind, half shyly, turning the Teacher a chair, Helga hurried about, a round little figure of a woman with a round, changing face. From an immense wooden cupboard with red doors she brought out cups and saucers, and certain thin wa-rolled up tightly in sugar. And she laid out and drank, she sat her hands clasped in her lap, never a word.

"From an inner room, Lind heard steady, muffled sound, between a door and a purr.

"It is grandmother, spinning," said Mrs. Bjarnasson. "She is and, but she spins. She spins all her wool."

She speaks no English, of course," said Lind.

She spoke none. But when Lind, at it in and shook hands with her, an ancient lady raised her face to as if she were looking at her recognition. She was so so that as she sat at the spinning wheel, her head was almost with the distaff.

She murmured something in Icelandic.

She means that you are good to her," said Mrs. Bjarnasson the older. "She always says she see people's faces when they see the first time to her. She tell your fortune if you ask."

There was easier to hear the old, who drew aside from her and took both of the other's hands in her own with-ones. She held them and and her knotted, brown face, had something of a sheen of a hindrance to Lind's ambition to extend his pastures farther westward. Lind heard the trailing clangor of the wild geese. Their cry smote upon the heart like the loneliness of the universe. . . . a magnificent seeking through solitude—an endless quest.

The farm of Thorvald Thorvaldson, lay halfway between the lake and the Bjarnassons'. Thorvald had nine girls, and no boys. Consequently his farm was a fragment of neglect, a ragged piece of land of no value save as a hindrance to Cate's ambition to extend his pastures farther westward. Lind heard the trailing clangor of the wild geese. Their cry smote upon the heart like the loneliness of the universe. . . . a magnificent seeking through solitude—an endless quest.

When the Teacher went to bed finally, the storm had abated. High above the soothing of the wind under the great eaves of the stone house, Lind heard the trailing clangor of the wild geese. Their cry smote upon the heart like the loneliness of the universe. . . . a magnificent seeking through solitude—an endless quest.

SECRETS OF HEALTH AND SUCCESS

BY CHARLES A. L. REED, M.D. FORMER PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

HAVE you ever stopped to consider to what extent your health or even your life depends upon the conditions of your surroundings? This is what the scientists call "adaptation to environment" and it means a lot to everybody.

In fact, H. Crichton Miller says, in effect, that the whole art of living is adaptation to the environment.

Man is both, with certain qualities, physical and mental; throughout his whole life he is exposed to an environment which makes certain demands on him. His adaptation is measured by the extent to which he adjusts his desires to these demands and the degree of the internal harmony and social efficiency which he maintains.

The three great groups of unsuccessful adaptations are the neurotic, the delinquent and the insane.

The first of these is the most significant to the ordinary person. The process of adaptation is essentially evolutionary.

That is to say, that the duty of man is to evolve from an instinct-driven mechanism to a diverse being. Every step he takes is marked by some extension of his conscious purpose, and a compensatory restriction of direct instinctive reaction. However, purpose is not in itself dynamic, for the only dynamic is instinct. Purpose is the instrument with which a man modifies or sublimates his instinctive responses, and applies his instinctive energy to some end that has value for society.

Human purpose may be selfish or altruistic. The selfish man aims at pleasure, the altruistic man aims at reality. Between these two principles lies the whole scale of ethical values with resultant effects upon both health and vitality.

Adaptation is a constant succession of choices between advance and retreat. A patient suffering from adolescent (dementia praecox) insanity is one who has either chosen or, by inherent defects, has been forced to retreat. It is also

Center—Frock of cross-bar crepe with three rows of smocking at the waistline and cuffs. The skirt and lower sleeve are of plain crepe laid in box pleats. A large hat of Milan straw completes the costume.

A choice between growth and stagnation.

The man who lives in a net of rules and sanctions is one who refuses to accept growth. The result of trying to bring life to a standstill is a psychoneurosis that may take the form of hysteria, anxiety, obsession or in a few psychoses, and the penalty for this retreating from life is insanity.

The choice is also between reality and mere pleasure. The alcoholic finds reality too painful and retreats into a chemically-produced state of bliss, called euphoria. Much money is spent on treating alcoholism that would be saved if the basis of the problem were attacked, i.e., the reason why the drunkard who is not made a drunkard by physical defects has chosen to succumb to the pleasure principle. Alcoholism is an expression of unsuccessful adaptation.

Adaptation also involves conflict between heroism and cowardice. In the war, shell-shock patients (hysterical paralysis) came to the doctors as well as malingers. The malingers were a coward because his refusal to adapt was conscious; the neurotic could not be called a coward because the cause of his failure to adapt was unconscious. He was, however, a coward in the psychological sense, though not in the ethical.

This difference is always present.

in the failures of civil life, useless to condemn a man to coward if he retreats from unconscious motives; the only remedy to discover what these motives are.

All these failures of adaptation may be given the single name: regression; to regress is to go in an earlier, more primitive than that which is suitable whether this way be childish or savage.

These principles apply to and to every member of your family and simply mean "adapt yourself to your surroundings, change the surroundings for better ones!"

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

With You.

JUST sometimes when the twilight falls and Earth grows hushed and still save for the melancholy call of some lone whip-poor-will, I give myself to vagrant dreams, stray back through old years' gate to lands where Youth's bright banner gleams and tender memories wait. Just for a little space it glows so marvelously fair I grieve that time so swiftly goes, for I would linger there. Untill, with twilight's deepening hue and whip-poor-will's refrain, there comes the welcome thought of you to lure me back again. To lure me back into today, with all today's trim care, to lead me on along the way here toiling feet must fare. Just sometimes when the shadows fall, old dreams hold fitful sway; but joyously I leave them all to toil with you today.

The wretch who often has deceived. Though truth he speaks is never believed.—Pheacrus.

Using Chex—To Shampoo Reveals Alluring Beauty Never Suspected

Note a new gleam to the hair—find alluring, stylish hair-dressing made possible!

Chex does more for the hair and scalp—it cleans, beautifies—and deodorizes to perfect purity.

Any scalp may have offensive odor—due to decomposition of the waste secretion or natural oil. Such substances destroy the gleam and beauty nature gives to human hair.

Chex contains a lasting, odorless deodorant, not used in any other soap or shampoo liquid. This rare purifying agent in the creamy abundant lather, penetrates to the very bottom of the tiny scalp pores, dissolves the secretions, including dandruff—destroys the odor of perspiration, and stops the unhealthy deadening of the hair follicles.

You'll "Fall in love" with Chex—and be "Alluring" every hour in 21." Chex is the wonder soap of the age, but costs no more than other fine soaps at drug stores and toilet counters. Over a million uses used the first year. Physicians are recommending its purity and mildness.

The Kind of Soap

uty experts use themselves

A soap made for ONE purpose only: to foster good complexion; and thus to safeguard yours in this way

BEFORE Palmolive came women were told "use no soap on your face." Soaps then were judged too harsh.

Then came Palmolive — a soap made by experts in beauty with 60 years of soap study behind it; a soap made to be used freely, lavishly on the skin.

On the advice of beauty authorities, the whole world soon adopted it. Youth preserved, beautiful complexions came to thousands as a result.

Made for one purpose only—to safeguard your complexion—Palmolive affects the skin as no other soap. Just try it one week in this way. Note then your complexion.

The daily rule that thousands follow now: Wash your face gently with Palmolive Soap, massaging it softly into the skin. Rinse thoroughly, with warm water, then with cold. If your skin is inclined to be dry, apply a touch of good cold cream—that is all.

Use this regularly, and particularly the evening. Use powder and lipstick if you wish. But never leave them on pores, of heads and low. The just do to come soft and be less a vance.

Do not treatment think any as of palm as Palmolive. It costs what it does. That is all. The Palmolive Chicago,

Swedish Woman Lifted to Fame By Saga Tales

Seima Lagerof came out of the dark silent forests of the North of Sweden as a little girl who loved to tell stories and she grew up to be one of Sweden's greatest woman writers, a weaver of sagas like the old Norse bards of a thousand years ago, says an Associated Press story.

Her books, fired with wild and moving scenes from Swedish life, started a new school of writing and have brought her to the forefront of Swedish femininity. Honors and marks of esteem have come to her during 25 years of study and work, among them being the Nobel prize for literature, membership in the Swedish Academy and honorary degrees from several universities.

Mme. Lagerof was the first woman elected to membership in the Swedish academy.

Born in 1858 at Marbacka farm in Vermland, a northwest province where the tradition and folklore of her people survives to an extent unknown elsewhere in the land, she spent her childhood in country surroundings. A delicate child, she could not play with other children as much as she would have cared to, but was left to herself. In this way she found her greatest interest in books and stories. Soon she began to tell stories of her own and to write little novels of the life around her.

Like many girls, she left her country home to become a school teacher. After attending the Royal Women's Superior Training College in Stockholm, she taught in the girls' high school at Landserona, continuing her studies and her writing.

The noted writer's public career began in 1890 when she won a literary prize offered by a weekly journal. The book was a great success, being translated into 12 languages.

When she published "Invisible Links," in 1894, proving a ripening literary talent, King Oscar II, himself a man of letters, recognized her genius and made arrangements that enabled her to devote herself entirely to writing. She traveled widely and novels, stories and essays came from her pen. On the occasion of her sixtieth birthday, in 1923, Carl August Bolander, the Swedish critic and author, paid this tribute:

"However gray her hair has turned, her tales and stories will remain as young as ever. No titles need be mentioned; we know them all, for they have become the property of the nation and of the world."

Her "In Jerusalem" is considered the greatest of Sweden's modern literature.

There is nothing difficult in the world; the only fear is that men will lack perseverance.—Confucius.

Children's Bedtime Story By Thornton W. Burgess

Johnny Chuck's Nose Is Out of Joint

A nose put out of joint may be a splendid thing for you or me. —Johnny Chuck.

Of course you know what it means to have your nose put out of joint. It means simply having your feelings upset by finding you are less important than you thought you were. And Johnny is right in saying that it is a good thing sometimes. No one ever admits it at the time, but usually will later.

Johnny Chuck had made up his mind that he wouldn't stay another minute longer than he had to in the Old Pasture. Never in all his life had he been more frightened than when Buster Bear tried to dig him out. He just couldn't get over it. So he told Old Jed Thumper, the gray old Rabbit who lived in the Old Pasture, that that was no place for him, and he meant to start back for the Green Meadows that very afternoon.

"Everybody to his own taste," said Old Jed Thumper. "Everybody to his own taste. The Old Pasture is the finest place in all the Great World, and perhaps if you live long enough you'll find it out."

"Huh!" said Johnny Chuck. "Huh! You're welcome to think so. Buster Bear doesn't come down on the Green Meadows, and I can get along very nicely without Buster Bear for a neighbor."

"He isn't a neighbor here," protested Old Jed Thumper. "It is only once in a while that he comes here."

"Well, once in a while is once too often for me," declared Johnny Chuck. "So I'm off this very minute. Goodbye."

"Oh, it's you!" said Polly Chuck as she poked her head out of the doorway.

"Goodbye," said Old Jed Thumper. "Come and see me once in a while."

Johnny Chuck said nothing, but in his own mind he decided that never again would he visit the Old Pasture if he could help himself. So he hurried down the old cow path until at last he came to the edge of the Green Meadows.

It was a long way across the Green Meadows up to the Old Orchard, but Johnny Chuck didn't hesitate. He kept going and going and going. Somehow, although he was right out in the open there on the Green Meadows, he was no longer afraid. He knew he was too big and strong for any one he was likely to meet. He knew that none of the Hawk family were likely to try to catch such an old tough fellow as he. So he kept on and on and on toward the Old Orchard.

All the way across the Green Meadows Johnny kept thinking how glad Polly Chuck would be to see him. "She probably thinks that by this time I'm dead," thought Johnny. "How surprised and delighted she'll be when I come walking in, and what a lot I'll have to tell her."

At last Johnny Chuck reached his old home. He was tired. He was tired and he was out of breath, for he had hurried the last part of the way. No one was in sight. He had half hoped that Polly Chuck would be sitting on the doorstep. He poked his head in at the doorway and listened. Polly was at home. He could hear her somewhere down below. He started to go down. Almost at once he heard Polly coming up. So he backed out and waited just outside.

"Oh, it's you," said Polly Chuck, as she poked her head out of the doorway. "Well keep away from here now."

Johnny Chuck gasped with surprise. "Aren't you glad to see me?" he asked.

"Not right now," replied Polly Chuck. "You run away and keep away." With this, Polly disappeared inside the house again.

Johnny just sat there and stared and stared at the empty doorway. His nose was decidedly out of joint.

Snake Collar the Latest.

Among the new offerings in jewelry is "The Lido" collar, which is a single row of pearls hung on a wire and worn, snake fashion, close around the throat. Some of these spirals have the ends made of a rhinestone or some other jewel ornament. When the end is of stress with tiny jewel eyes the effect is striking.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Buy It in Quantities.

Buy soap by the quantity. First of all it will be found much more reasonable in larger lots and then it lasts longer when older and dryer.

Easily Identified.

Before starting on a journey it is wise to see if you have some sort of identification fastened on your clothing. A visiting card in your hand bag is not enough, as in an accident the bag may be separated from you. Have your name and address right on you.

Timely Tips.

Sprinkle salt over the matting or grass rugs before sweeping.

Equal portions of water and ammonia will remove varnish from furniture.

Bacon sandwiches are delicious in the packed lunch—yet so often, unthought of.

The colored oilcloth dollies are practical for summer breakfast and luncheons.

Black coffee containing a teaspoonful of lemon juice will often cure a blinding headache.

Pistachio Souffle.

Shell and blanch four ounces of pistachio nuts. Chop half very fine and thinly slice the other half. Beat three egg whites stiff, add the sliced nuts and a half pound of sugar. Add a few drops of flavoring and put in thin paper cases. Sprinkle with the chopped nuts and a little sugar and bake brown in a slow oven. Turn out of the cases and serve with custard or ice cream.

HOME-MAKING HELPS By WANDA BARTON

HOUSEKEEPING by index is a new idea. A file is kept for the contents of each room, its location noted, and the index tells what it contains.

For the linen room or closet, every item is recorded, even the shelves upon which the things rest is noted. The library is catalogued after the manner of public libraries, so that it is a simple matter to find anything wanted. The music is cared for in the same fashion.

In the pantries, everything is listed and a card is on the inside of the door. This card notes all breakages or losses that are in turn copied in the index.

When it comes to the kitchen, there will be closets and drawers to index, but they will each be numbered and cards tacked inside so that one need not hunt long for a needed article. Even the cellar and the attic have numbers and cards.

Screens, awnings and windows are all numbered so that the fittings are never misplaced. Every door or closet key is tagged and will be found in a basket on the household desk. In the housekeeping ledger, the system is fully explained so that it may be grasped in all its details by any newcomer who is to take part in the household.

No matter how small the house, the same motions are required to do the work as in a large house, only not as many of them. The woman who lacks system will have trouble in following the indexed plans. The orderly woman will love it and profit by the plan. Children will like it because it is definite and final, they don't like guessing or wondering about the location of necessities.

IMPORTANT to Eaters of Ice Cream

If the price of Ice Cream were arranged according to what goes into it, you ought to pay a great deal more for Carpenter's Hydrox or a great deal less for others.

As it is, you are now paying about the same price for every Ice Cream regardless of its food value, its goodness or its purity.

Carpenter's Hydrox Ice Cream is a quality product.

It is rich with the wholesomeness of pure, sweet cream, sweetened with pure cane sugar and filled with the juicy goodness of actual fruits.

If your dealer does not handle Hydrox, tell him you want him to handle Hydrox or to charge you less for what he is handling.

THE PASSING SHOW.

THE cotton gin is quite o. k. And interesting in a way. But we have heard some people say Synthetic gin is rotten. But in this you can stick a pin. That while the two are not of kin. If we can get synthetic gin. We'll not be spitting cotton!

Today's the thirty-first of May. The races opened Saturday. And we will have a chance to lay a wager on a long-shot.

But, when we bet upon the same. Whatever be the horse's name. Because of misdirected aim. He'll prove to be the wrong shot!

The Brownie boys are home again. And in our midst they will remain. Until they've wiped up the terrain.

With clubs that are much weaker. The worm with indignation burned. At being trod upon and spurned. And with determination turned. Upon the tribe of Speaker.

NO CHANCE. Billy Sunday announces that he may run for the presidency on a dry platform. Billy once beat Archie Latham in a 100-yard match race, but we doubt that he could take such famous speed merchants as Cal Coolidge, Al Smith et al.

At that, if Billy could poll the full strength of the baseball vote his speed might enable him to stretch a single into a home run if his opponent should misjudge a highball.

A SACRIFICE HIT.

It seems that the gent who got hit on the nose by a home run from the bat of one James Bottomley was witnessing his first game of ball. A more seasoned fan having the interest of the team at heart instead of suing would have gladly sacrificed his nose on the altar of sportsmanship and scored it as a sacrifice hit. We imagine he might have cogitated somewhat in the following vein after the manner of Mr. Henley:

UNDER the bludgeonings of Jim I have not winced nor cried aloud.
